COME AND BE FILLED

TROPICO CELEBRATES

TWO BIG DINNERS ARE BEING PLANNED FOR GLENDALE'S BIG FIESTA

One of the most popular features of the Glendale Festival of Fruits and Flowers that has yet been brought to the attention of the public are the two cafeteria dinners to be served both Friday and Saturday evenings, May 28 and 29 from 5 to 8 in the Masonic Temple.

Fifty energetic and capable women are busily engaged working out the details of these two big feasts, but only the names of the chairmen can be given here. Mrs. H. H. Martin is the general chairman and under her on Friday will be Mrs. Frank Hester and Mrs. V. Price Brown, chairmen of cooking and serving; Mrs. H. H. Faries and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, chairmen of floor and table committees, and Mrs. Nash and Mrs. Adams, chairmen of co-operating committee to assist wherever assistance is needed. On Saturday Mrs. H. E. Bartlett and Mrs. E. S. McKee will be chairmen of cooking and serving; Mrs. Luther Brown and Mrs. Endemiller will be at the head of the floor and table committee, and Mrs. E. D. Yard and Mrs. Rowe will be chairmen of the co-operating committee.

The menu will be published later. Suffice it to say that a cafeteria dinner of good quality and variety will be served by well-known Tuesday Afternoon club ladies. Everything will be home cooked as only Glendale women know how to cook.

There will be a lady attendant at the Masonic Temple during both dinners to care for wraps, etc. In fact, the Temple will be headquarters for the entire fiesta as the free auto rides will operate from there. There will also be a register there so that out-of-town guests may register their names and the day of their visit. In this way we may learn how many tenderfeet are interested in Glendale.

Boost for the big dinners!

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The service at the morning hour yesterday was a missionary one, and the sermon was given by Rev. F. Rogers, secretary of the Southern California Christian Missionary society. Mr. Rogers was for six years pastor of the Christian church at Long Beach and was largely instrumental in making it the great institution which it is. He is a live wire and gave a most interesting talk on missions in general and the special work in that line of this church in Southern California. "The Disciples now have 84 churches in the ten counties of this field, the larger number of which have been organized and assisted by this society. The field is yet worked in only a limited way, however, especially in those towns which are farther away from Los Angeles. Even in our own immediate vicinity, however, there are towns like San Pedro and Venice where there is no foothold at all by the Church of Christ."

Mr. Rogers had a splendid map which showed all these points and made the work very clear to his auditors. At the close of the service he made a strong plea for individual pledges to the work, especially for the support of the church at Cypress Park, which is so close to Glendale and where there is practically a clear field for Christian work. The Glendale church will make that church its special charge and enough pledges were made to give it the entire support for a year which it has found necessary to obtain from the extension board.

The Glendale church is proud of the fact that it has been self supporting from its very organization, and can always be counted on to do its share in carrying the gospel to the world, both in its home and foreign fields.

The Men's class will have a business meeting at the home of Mr. C. E. Hutton, 900 W. Colorado street, tomorrow evening at 7:30. All of the men belonging to this class are invited to be present.

The Ladies' Aid will have an all-day session on Thursday of this week.

The prayer meeting on Wednesday evening will be led by Prof. Dungan. Such an announcement should be sufficient to bring a fine attendance. As one man aptly remarked, "When young men for years traveled long distances and paid out hard-earned money to sit under the instruction and imbibe the wisdom of Dr. Dungan, we ought to esteem it a great privilege to have him in our own church and to get these values with not greater cost or effort than merely attending services where it should be our great joy to attend anyway."

One of the most pleasing features

BIG BOOSTER BANQUET FOR PUBLIC WELFARE

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE WELFARE COMMITTEE INAUGURATES CAMPAIGN TO PROMOTE CIVIC HARMONY AND ADVANCEMENT AMONG PEOPLE OF GLENDALE AT BANQUET

Did you attend the celebration that marked the completion of the municipal playgrounds? You did not? Then you certainly did miss a most interesting event. Every one was there. Every one smiling and happy and each congratulating the other upon the completion of the splendid playgrounds.

Over 400 persons occupied seats in the grandstand with the Glendale Union High school boys and enjoyed an interesting game of ball in the new diamond. The game was between the Glendale Union high school team and the ball team from the Burbank high school. This game resulted in a victory for the Glendale team, the score being 12 to 3. A bicycle race was later enjoyed, the course encircling the ball grounds.

The program began with a May song and dance given by the pupils in Miss Saxton's school. The little folks wore dresses and caps suggestive of poppies, violets and daisies. Dainty little Mildred Moody was crowned queen and sitting upon her rose-decked throne participated in the May day festivities. The Maypole dance was given under the supervision of Miss Weatherby, teacher of music. At the conclusion of the dance the spectators assembled over near the tennis court to witness the flag raising. A large flag pole had been erected between the tennis court and the ball grounds. To Miss Frances Richardson, "the flag lady," was given the honor of raising the handsome flag, which was presented by N. P. Banks, Woman's Relief corps to the playgrounds. Owing to the absence of Mrs. David H. Imler, corps president, who was in San Jose attending the department convention of the corps, Miss Cora Hickman presented the flag. Miss Richardson received the flag and loosening the fastening began to raise the flag. The school children were standing around the flag pole and as the folds were caught on high by the gentle breeze the rose petals fell in a great shower upon the upturned faces of the dear little people who with right hands uplifted were repeating the flag salute. Then as the beautiful banner reached the pinnacle of the flag pole three mighty cheers were given. The band struck up the Star Spangled Banner and amid the music, the loud cheering and the flag salute the folds of our country's emblem rose and fell upon the breeze in gentle undulations.

Following these patriotic ceremonies Miss Richardson gave a brief talk to the children respecting the flag, which today is the only flag of peace in the entire world. Then followed the races, potato, cracker, sack, one-legged and all those races by boys and girls which are always so very amusing. The bon fire supper was enjoyed by all, the boy scouts taking full charge of the bon fire and the ladies, a scope or more, assisting with the supper, which was everything that could be desired. Mrs. Ella Richardson, as chairman of the committee, was assisted by Mrs. Dwight Griswold, Mrs. Charles A. Barker, Mrs. William A. Hough, Mrs. Mary Chadwick, president of the Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Robert Danner, Mrs. Charles Bruck, Miss Florence Chadwick and many others who worked long and earnestly to make this celebration a success. About $75 was realized from the supper, which will be applied upon the school grounds. Dr. W. C. Mabry, who had charge of the play ground, was a very happy but a very tired man, as were Robert Danner and Edward Shuey.

What if every one was tired? Just one look into the joyous faces of the children and all else was forgotten, for had not these little ones been made happy by giving them an up-to-date playground?

Mrs. W. A. Dutton of Virginia place has returned from a week's visit enjoyed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. Van Court of Los Angeles.

Miss Ellen Sharpe, who has been quite ill at her home on Cypress street, is very much improved. Miss Lydia Stanton of West Park avenue has been assisting Miss Amarett Sharpe in caring for her invalid sister.

C. Edward Shuey and Wayne Frank left for San Francisco Sunday morning, where they will spend a fortnight visiting the fair and also attending the grand lodge of Knights of Pythias that convenes there this week.

Mr. Usilton's words were received with marked applause.

The toastmaster then called on the president of the board of trustees, Mr. O. A. Lane.

Mr. O. A. Lane said: "It is pleasant to be here. I came here expecting to listen and to learn. I think we can learn of each other. Someone proposed for Glendale the motto, 'A clean city, kept clean.' That is an excellent motto. It is the motto of brotherhood. Is there anything better?

WARNING TO BOYS

PROMPT PUNISHMENT AWAITS THOSE WHO RIDE BICYCLES ON SIDEWALKS

The police department of Glendale is determined to enforce the ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor to ride a bicycle on any of the sidewalks of the city. There have been frequent complaints of late concerning the infringement of this ordinance, but in every case the information came to the police department too late for action.

On Saturday evening, May 15, a very bad case occurred. Young Bennett, a high school boy, son of Mrs. Bennett, 443 Rock Glen avenue, was riding his bicycle on Colorado boulevard at a high speed, and apparently entirely oblivious of where he was going. As might have been expected he encountered some obstacle. That obstacle unfortunately was the little boy of W. S. Rattray, 102 Colorado boulevard.

As the bicycle was going at full speed Mr. Rattray's little boy was thrown to the ground with great violence. He received a very severe cut on the head and had his arm badly skinned and bruised. For some time it was thought that the child had been even more badly injured than he was as the effusion of blood was very profuse.

Fortunately for young Bennett the case was not pressed by the Rattrays, who showed much leniency in refraining from prosecuting the offender. The police naturally could do nothing but warn Bennett. The department, however, desires the boys of Glendale to know that the city ordinance relating to bicycle riding on the sidewalks is to be strictly enforced and the next offender caught will be made an example of.

The long immunity from punishment for this violation of a city ordinance has apparently rendered very lax practice in this matter common. It will be well for our Glendale youths who ride bicycles to look out that they keep the law as the police have determined to prosecute a vigorous campaign against all offenders.

FROM THE INLAND WATERWAYS ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, May 17.—The executive committee of the Inland Waterways Association of California will hold its semi-annual congress in San Francisco in September, and is preparing to make that event a large success with the co-operation of the people of the southern counties.

At a meeting of the executive committee David H. Walker, the executive secretary, was instructed to visit all the southern counties and to confer with the people and secure the appointment of strong committees on program and arrangements.

The association was organized in San Francisco in January, 1914. The first congress held subsequent to that time was at Stockton. The second congress was held in March at the Civic auditorium in San Francisco, where Vice President Marshall, United States Senator Phelan and many other prominent men took part in the proceedings. The southern counties were represented by a strong delegation at San Francisco, and they promised that the Los Angeles congress would be made a striking event by reason of large attendance and an attractive program.

In making arrangements for the Los Angeles congress probably all members of the executive committee of the Inland Waterways Association of California will assist. A special effort will be made to secure as many representative people in the southern counties as possible.

The executive secretary of the association will be in Los Angeles May 17 and will confer with all southern members of the association and many organizations, including the board of supervisors.

The Southern California members of the executive committee, together with the committee on investigation of federal and state projects and legislative committee include the following: Mrs. L. Brainerd, T. E. Gibbons, John J. Hamilton, H. G. Holabird, W. E. Hinshaw, C. T. Leeds, R. W. Pridham, A. L. Parmley, J. W. Reagan, Mrs. H. W. R. Strong, W. W. Wilcox, C. H. Windham, F. E. Woodley, A. J. Hill, W. F. Holt, H. Hawgood, Richard H. Norton, F. H. Olmstead and Thomas Talbert.

GLENDALE HAS CHANCE

Though defeated in the oratorical contest at Pasadena Glendale will have another chance in the finals which will be fought out between the two highest candidates in the Los Angeles set and the two highest in the Glendale, Pasadena, Long Beach, etc.

ELKS' STREET CARNIVAL

GREAT SUCCESS ATTENDED OPEN AIR DANCE ON SATURDAY NIGHT

Glendale has reason to congratulate itself on the marked success that attended the street carnival and dance held by the Elks Saturday night. The practice thus inaugurated is more than likely to become popular as on all hands could be heard commendation of the new plan for popular amusement.

A portion of the street on Broadway between Brand and Orange was railed in. On a platform in the center was stationed the band which disbursed such rhythmical music. A charge of 5 cents a couple was made and after expenses are paid there will be a very handsome sum left over for forwarding the candidacy for queen of the festival of Miss Barbara Mitchell.

Great credit is due Dr. Harry G. Martin, 403 1/2 S. Brand boulevard, for his originality in suggesting this popular form of entertainment and for the successful manner in which he and his assistants carried out all plans for the affair. Dr. Martin was assisted in his arduous work by Ed. Wauback, King Booth and Albert Pearce. The whole committee worked hard to make the dance a success and were rewarded by the support of the public.

The orchestra was Merrill's band, a four-piece combination from Los Angeles. The dril team of the Elks in their handsome white uniforms were a striking feature of the occasion. They lent the necessary touch of color to the dance and aided effectively in keeping order and in carrying out the arrangements of the committee.

Toward the close of the evening Exalted Ruler Stephen C. Packer called the Elks to the center of the dancing square and gave command that they should contribute liberally to the funds. They made a hearty response, though with many snorts and sighs emblematic of their forest name. In this way and from the dance money proper a very handsome sum was raised to further Barbara Mitchell's candidacy.

The dance came to an end in good time. The music ceased at 11:30 p. m., and the large crowd went home with many wishes expressed that there might be another dance soon.

GLENDALE HIGH TROUNCES COVINA

Bidwell, the Glendale Union High School hurler, was too much for the Covina high school ball club yesterday when the two teams clashed at Covina with the simple result that the Glendale boys came off the field with a nice little 11 to 2 victory tucked nicely away.

Bidwell allowed four hits, netting his opponents a brace of runs. Both the runs and most of the bingles were the results of indifference or charity when his team was so far in the lead as to make a little gift like a run or so a thing of no moment whatever to the Glendale mound man.

King and Jackson were on the mound for the Covina home team ball players. Both were exceedingly easy for the opposing army. The game was a nice little victory for the local boys and is worth a celebration.

Charles Kepen of Dynas company handled the indicator and had things peaceful throughout.

BOOK LOVERS TO MEET

The literary section of the Tuesday Afternoon club will meet in the home of Mrs. Patterson, corner of Riverdale drive and Columbus avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The roll call will be answered by a current event. Mrs. J. J. McReynolds will give fifteen minutes of current events. Review of Edward Fitzgerald Beale by Mrs. Wayland Brown; reading from "Overland Red" by Mrs. Nash; extracts from the "Contest for California in 1861" by Mrs. Dougherty.

BASEBALL AT TROPICO

Much interest is being taken in the baseball game that will be played Saturday at Tropico in the public park at 2:30 p. m. The Tropico men are in fine shape to meet their opponents, the Haas-Baruchs, of Los Angeles. It is expected that the game will be keenly contested throughout as the teams are both in good form. Batteries for Tropico: Marple and Woodard.

PATRONIZING HOME TRADE

Americans have always stood for the patronizing of home industry and home trade. Carefully thought-out tariffs have been devised for that purpose and have generally met with success. This spirit has penetrated into the small city and has resulted in a cry for the patronizing of home trade. There is much to be said in favor of this idea, but those who advocate it have need to see that on their part they do all that is needed to merit such patronage.

Mr. J. W. Usilton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in an interesting communication to the Glendale Evening News on Saturday, points out that while there is just cause for criticism of many of our citizens for not trading at home, there is need that our tradespeople endeavor to meet competition in price and quality and to convince the residents by publicity that they can do as well at home as elsewhere.

It is singular that the very people who are complaining of lack of home patronage, when it comes to advertising, shirk their own obligations; when it comes to printing they go to some city printer and entirely overlook, when it is a question of themselves, the neighbors at their doors.

With regard to many articles of commerce Glendale dealers might be able to undersell the city. In any case they might meet city cut prices and in this way secure the local trade that now goes to Los Angeles. It should not be difficult to do this when one considers that Glendale store rents are so much smaller than those in Los Angeles and that other expenses are smaller in proportion.

By and by Glendale and Los Angeles will be one continuous city and there will be more likelihood that people will buy at their own doors rather than travel miles into a crowded city to secure a mythical advantage that carfare and other expenses incidental to city travel in the end would wipe out if they ever existed.

There is much in Mr. Usilton's contention that residents of Glendale before criticizing the Chamber of Commerce for not taking up and strenuously advocating such questions as this and other civic points, should aid the chamber in building up the city and aid their neighbors in building up their trade. There is much danger that citizens regarding too closely the mote in their brother's eye forget entirely the beam that is in their own.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BANQUET

Those present at the Chamber of Commerce banquet held in the Masonic temple Saturday night could not help recognizing that a new note had been struck in the symphonic story of Glendale. Those who attended to the number of about 100 were not a clique; neither had they personal motives in attending. Representative citizens of every class were there and their speeches and the general tone of the whole gathering showed plainly that individual likes and dislikes had been thrown into the discard and that a strong determination was there to rid Glendale once and forever of the evil spirit of contention.

It is a matter for congratulation that so many men of note and men of weight in the counsels of the great city at our doors are residents of Glendale and are willing to do something for the welfare of the city in which they live. That willingness was clearly manifested on Saturday night. It is a feeling that has suddenly developed remarkable strength and is likely to sweep into the ocean of oblivion the carping critics of public policy who have unmissable personal motives to serve.

Throughout the evening the feeling was strongly expressed that if Glendale is to progress in the future on right lines, all unworthy criticism of public men and public policies must cease. In particular the individual who is always "agin' the government" must be relegated to his native obscurity and his so-called "criticisms" consigned to the limbo of forgetfulness.

The men who attended the Chamber of Commerce banquet as can be seen from the list published in this paper today, were men whose motives are above suspicion; men who are honestly striving for the public good and men who are determined also that the obstructive spirit which ruins and mars so much that is best in any community shall be quietly, but none the less effectively, rendered innocuous.

As a clear indication of how anxious the citizens who were present at the banquet are to act impersonally it may be noted that when the matter concerning the making over of Glendale into a city of the fifth class came up there was not even a shadow of suggestion that it should be determined otherwise than by the people themselves and a motion was immediately made to refer the question to a mass meeting of the people and carried unanimously. Working in that spirit it will not be difficult for such men to convince the community of their disinterestedness even if their civic standing did not already put them above all suspicion.

From this time forward Glendale should have a clear course toward the goal of civic prosperity. Working with one heart and one mind, this city should be able to build up a glorious city of pure manhood and womanhood—a city where the voice of contention shall be heard no more.

NEWFOUNDLAND FOR PROHIBITION

Newfoundland has always been a peculiar country with regard to the liquor question. There has been of late at least more or less prohibition. The saloons may be opened only between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Private drinking rooms have been abolished; drunkards may be blacklisted by order of magistrate and three offenses against the law entail forfeiture of a license. That is pretty stringent program; yet it is likely to be superseded by total prohibition.

There is a strong reason for prohibition in Newfoundland. At present the only place in the island where liquor can be legally sold is St. Johns. The poor fishing population goes into St. Johns sometimes to cash catch checks; sometimes to get paid for their "lays." When in town the temptation to spend has often been too much for the fisherman and he has spent all that he had.

The winter season is a great time for the Newfoundland fisher folk. When asked how the people expected to get through the long and severe winter there, a Roman Catholic bishop is said to have answered: "With the help of God and the benefit of a few wrecks." The significance of the answer lay in the fact that the Newfoundland fisher people do really depend to some extent on what they may get out of the frequent wrecks on their coast.

Those winter wrecks were the cause of much drunkenness on the part of natives or "liviers" (live heres) as they call themselves. Many of the big steamships wrecked on the Newfoundland coast carry large consignments of liquors. That liquor has been the cause of such evil and it is hoped that the evil may be counteracted by the total abolishment of the traffic and the upbuilding of a personal temperance that will put all temptation from the liquor of the wrecks out of the minds of the natives.

Conditions in Newfoundland are hard enough and grinding poverty in that strenuous climate is too serious to be complicated by the difficulties and suffering caused by indulgence in alcoholic liquors.

PUBLIC COMFORT STATIONS

In view of the rapid development of Glendale which the government census of 1910 showed to possess a population of 2746, an increase of 222.5 per cent in five years, to the beginning of 1915 it had increased to 7931, and it is reasonable to suppose that during the next five years the city will show a population of 16,000. Indeed it is difficult to figure otherwise. Here is everything that is calculated to attract families of the better sort—real families that will afford a normal increase within their own household limits. Such families will attract other families of the same kind.

Freedom from crime, comparative safety at home, benign influences in the church, and in the school, the absence of saloons and the saloon element—all these are valuable assets to this city. Besides all this Glendale stands in the heart of unrivaled natural scenery; its hills are natural air purifiers; its water is abundant and of unequalled purity. If Glendale had nothing more than these advantages it would have a great deal more than the average sixth class city.

Glendale, however, must not rest content with the advantages it already possesses. Once entered on the race for civic progress Glendale cannot afford to stand still. It must go forward. Its leading officials and citizens should, as they travel abroad throughout the land, mark whatever improvement is being introduced anywhere and immediately advocate its adoption—that is to say, if its adoption is suitable and would be profitable for Glendale.

Citizens of this rising and advancing city cannot fail to note that their city is destitute of one thing in which few modern cities are lacking—public comfort stations. One of the great arguments in favor of the saloon has always been that the saloon provides, free of expense, sanitary toilet rooms, with hot and cold water, an abundance of clean towels and competent attendance. That is true. Indeed the lengths to which some of the saloons and hotels have gone to cater to their patrons is amazing. "Do away with the saloon," say the defenders of that establishment, "and you will do away with much that has proved a boor to the public."

There is truth in that assertion. The city must see to it that what the saloon has been supplying is no longer left to that institution to supply. Indeed nothing but the most purblind and shortsighted public policy could ever have overlooked the handling of those public conveniences. The saloons were not long in seeing what the public demanded. They supplied it and the municipality must see to it that the supply is continued.

There has always been a demand in Glendale for such stations. Committees have been appointed to take charge of the matter. Those committees have made the usual reports. Those reports have been discussed and referred to further committees who have further reported and so on with all the minutiae of detail of a "circumlocution office."

There should be no longer any question of putting off this important matter. It cannot be a question of expense. Apparently Glendale can raise money for any ordinary purpose with an ease that makes it apparent that the citizens are not likely to stand in the "bread line" during the term of their natural lives. Evangelists, clubs of all kinds, the circus when it comes, the various school societies and many other institutions appear to conjure money out of our pockets without any very great exertion.

It should then be comparatively easy to raise the money necessary for this laudable public purpose and the collection of that fund should be set about at once.

There are two natural sites for such stations—one at the junction of Broadway and Brand, the other in the neighborhood of the city hall. Just at present those two should be sufficient for the city's needs. Afterward their number could be increased to keep pace with civic growth.

See America first is also a matter

Two men who had formerly lived in the same town met after a number of years and entered into conversation.

"Did all your boys turn out well, Jim?" asked one of them.

"Yes, indeed, they did."

"What's Albert doing?"

"He's trying to discover a new germ," replied the father.

"And Bob?"

"Oh, Bob is trying his hand at a newspaper an' bein' editor," was the old gentleman's reply.

"And Charlie—what's he at?"

"He's an actor. All the time talkin' about elevatin' the stage."

"And what are you doing, Jim, now that all your boys are away?"

"Well," answered the old man, "I'm a supportin' Albert an' Bob an' Charlie."

"Dearest," said the wife in great perturbation, "I've dropped my $500 diamond ring down the bath pipe. You must send for a plumber."

"Not me!" said the economical husband. "I'll buy you another ring."

AH, ME!

He rang the door bell where lived the fair girl he loved best of all in this beautiful world.

The maid opened the door.

"Miss Blinks is not in," she said without even a suspicion of regret in her well-modulated voice.

"Are you positive she isn't in?" he asked, hoping against hope.

"I'd lose my job if I wasn't," the maid replied, and the closing of the door sounded the knell of his most expensive hopes.

A FALSE ALARM

"I think the baby has your hair, ma'am," said the nurse girl, looking pleasantly at her mistress.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the lady, glancing up from her novel. And then it dawned on her that she had misunderstood the nurse girl.

Some people, if they had nothing to worry about, would worry about that.

RIVERSIDERS IN GLENDALE

Yesterday was a most auspicious day for the First English Evangelical Lutheran church in our city, as it was the very first Sunday spent in their new location for holding services, through the courtesy of the Seventh Day Adventist church, corner Third and Isabel.

The greatest pleasure and surprise awaited the pastor and his wife upon arriving at the church at 10 a. m. to find the Christian Endeavor society and numerous friends to the number of 25 of the Trinity English Lutheran church of Riverside, where Rev. Mottern was formerly pastor. They were present at Sunday school and took entire charge of the music at the time of public worship, singing a special selection under the leadership of their efficient choir master, "Jimmy" Grant. Most of the crowd form the evening choir at Riverside in the Lutheran church.

After visiting the pastor, Rev. W. R. Mottern, and wife at 340 South Central avenue, taking a fine dinner at Easton's restaurant, they all returned to Riverside via Pasadena. These young people are the life and soul of the congregation in Riverside and their surprise presence here yesterday was planned to encourage our Lutheran work.

Next Sunday is Whit Sunday and other "church boosters" from the First Lutheran church of Los Angeles to the number of between 30 and 40 will be present to assist the pastor and people in our Lutheran work.

They will bring brief messages on the following subjects: "The Value of the Lutheran Church in a Community," "Your Own Church Home as a Rallying Center," "Does the Lutheran Church Meet the Religious Needs of Today?" Let the congregation and all Lutheran friends take note and make every effort to be present to meet those friends next Sunday at the 11 o'clock service.

CONGREGATIONAL GLEANERS' CLASSES ENTERTAIN

The Gleaners' classes No. 1 and 2, of which Miss Adams and Miss Smith are teachers, entertained the girls of the classes and their mothers on Friday evening at the church. The girls had transformed the prayer meeting room of the church into a reception room and it was very attractive with rugs, comfortable chairs, cozy corners and many beautiful flowers. There was a splendid program of readings and vocal and instrumental music and an interesting guessing game. Ice cream and cake were daintily served during the evening.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

A Michigan member who was asked by his son to help him with some of the problems assigned as night work, says he can't see how a boy is going to learn anything when his teacher sends him home with problems that sound like this:

"If it takes a four months' old woodpecker, with a rubber bill, 9 months and 15 days to peck a hole through a cypress, log that is big enough to make 117 shingles, and it takes 165 shingles to make a bundle worth 93 cents, how long will it take a cross-eyed grasshopper with a cork leg to kick all the seeds out of a dill pickle?"

BIG BOOSTER BANQUET

but for the nine years of which I have been a resident every one here knows that its growth has been remarkable.

It was in February, 1906, that I made my first visit to Glendale, taking what was then known as the "Dinkey" car running to Glendale avenue.

Some here tonight remember that single line over an unpaved street, with no sidewalks and the dust as deep as can be found anywhere in Fernando valley, and on one of those real warm days that February sometimes gives to us.

I called on Mr. Sherer, who at that time was cashier and manager of the Bank of Glendale, and after a short visit with him turned toward Los Angeles, with no thought of ever making another visit.

I had just come from San Diego, and thought after a winter there that Glendale looked slow, and hardly desirable as a place to spend the remainder of our existence.

Nevertheless, though San Diego had been looked forward to as a most desirable place, it was but three or four months before Glendale began to look better and in August of the same year I had let go of my Iowa possessions, or enough of them to satisfy the demands of what was then the Central bank of Los Angeles, and I soon found myself a full-fledged and working citizen of Glendale.

The Bank of Glendale was then in the stone building at the corner of Glendale avenue and Third street, and the Glendale Grocery company was doing a flourishing business on the opposite corner, and on a board shack at Glendale avenue and Broadway was the sign, "Glendale Furniture company," while the Watson block was in course of construction.

The First National bank was in their new quarters where the Glendale Savings bank had their room. So far as I recall the residence now standing at the southwest corner of Brand and Third streets was the only building west of Brand boulevard, and the high school building as the pride of the city, occupied the place where Mr. Harrison and a few of the other boys spend a good portion of their time at quoits.

Glendale had recently been incorporated, and our friends said it was a mistake. It was going to be expensive, the city dads were likely to be extravagant. They already thought and talked of sidewalks in some places, and Mr. Brand was even then trying to inveigle them into accepting electric lights. There was a call to arms and the recall not being available, an election was called asking that the city be disincorporated. Still that did not work, and when the ballots were counted Glendale was still an incorporated city.

From that time elections have come fast and often, new houses sprang up at the rate of one per day for each year. Every newcomer wrote his eastern friends what a wonderful place he had found and the people came and new school houses had to be provided for the little ones, and bonds voted to pay the bills, then some more bonds and still others to come, till the old crowd who said let well enough alone have almost given up the ghost.

As a result of these efforts and the consequent development we now have six grammar schools, the group of high school buildings of which we are proud, and the school's among the best in the land.

The churches, too, not only in the organizations and numbers, but in the high standing of their ministry add their full part in making Glendale the desirable place that it is.

Then, too, we must not forget the car service that Glendale has and I think it not exaggeration to say that it is the best in the land (I think the merchants will agree that it is altogether too good).

There is a good prospect of its being even better than at present. Without it, however, and its help in the development the present Glendale could not have been possible.

During these years there have been the usual political changes in the city management and working forces, there has been criticism from those who say they would do differently, but in all that time in which the city has been growing from a little hamlet of less than five hundred to a city of near ten thousand and expanding over an area of five times its original size, we have had good clean, conscientious men at its head, men who have gone forward with the work regardless of those who would have stood still and to whose efforts and persistence is largely due the results that we see today.

I feel that Glendale is to be congratulated in having such men at its head. I believe that Glendale is to be congratulated on having for its citizens the best the world affords, and finally I believe that every citizen of Glendale should congratulate himself that he is able to live in Glendale.

Mr. Jones, the toastmaster, referring to some of Mr. Vesper's remarks said: "I regret that a mistake was made when the Union High School was erected. The whole square should have been secured for the school. The fact that that was not done presumes a lack of vision on our part. If the entire square had been secured we would have had a beautiful park dedicated to school purposes to be used as needed for building."

Meanwhile it might have been adorned with flowers and trees and been a thing of beauty and a joy forever. I wish also to give due praise to the Tuesday Afternoon club. The ladies of that club originated and organized the coming Fiesta of Fruits and Flowers. They deserve all credit and I hope each one of us will do everything in his power to make that a success."

Mr. M. P. Harrison said: "In connection with the Fiesta of Fruits and Flowers the question is 'What are you going to do?' We must co-operate with the ladies and help them to make a success of that undertaking. The ladies are the greatest boosters in Glendale today. They have organized what will be the greatest celebration Glendale has ever had. Let us help them in every way and do the best we know how."

Mr. George D. Paine, president of the Associated Charities, speaking of the benefits of co-operation, said: "There is a great future before Glendale. There is nothing wrong with the city that cannot easily be set to rights if we will only get together. We can make this city the best city to live in of all in this district. I came out to Glendale and thought so much of it that I bought a home here. I have friends coming to visit here. Some of them I am sure will come to stay. If you all advertise the city as you can you will help to bring here the very best element of citizenship. I myself do all I can and am willing to do more to help the city. If there is anything I can do I will do it."

Mr. Herman West was then called on for a song. He sang "Annie Laurie" with intense feeling and powerful dramatic interpretation. He was accompanied on the piano with great taste by Mr. J. F. Lilly, secretary.

The toastmaster then called on Mr. A. T. Cowan, proprietor and editor of the Glendale Evening News.

Mr. Cowan said: "I think it is well sometimes to be silent. We are perhaps inclined to talk too much at times. I believe in action. I believe that we should not talk so much. I do not refer to the proceedings of tonight. I believe in these gatherings, I think we all get great good from them. I think it is well to get together thus and exchange thoughts for the benefit of the city. What I mean is that it is easy to say, but not so easy to do. Important matters come up before our public bodies. Often after discussion they are referred to a committee. That committee reports. There is further wordy discussion and a further committee appointed until the original matter is forgotten in the multiplicity of speech. There is something to do, but too often the work is not done. If we want to progress we must do something and do it well."

"Glendale has before it a golden future, and I believe that it is capable of taking care of itself in view of that future. Be it the purpose of each one of you to do the best you can for the city.

"I think I am not far wrong when I say that there are men in the city of Glendale, prominent citizens too, who have never met the trustees of the city. Some of us at this banquet tonight look across at each other and ask 'Who is that?' I know of one case in which that question was asked, while all the time the two men happened to be neighbors separated only by the width of the street. We should get to know each other better. I have personally met with men of all kinds throughout the city. I make it my business to become acquainted with all. I believe that I become stronger by associating with all men and speaking to them personally. I find that in this way I get a clearer idea of what our people are thinking. I get to understand them better and they come to understand me. A great many of the difficulties in any community come from lack of proper understanding of what people are thinking. I would venture to say that some of the people in this room tonight do not know some of the best citizens of Glendale. If we can only come to know each other, if we can only speak heart to heart we can do ever so much more than we are doing for the advancement of the best interests of Glendale. I believe that Glendale is all right. I believe in trusting the people all the time. Go on and do your part and the people will do theirs."

Ezra F. Parker said: "I have been ten years in Glendale. Before settling here I made a test of a number of places, but I saw nothing better. I am still of the same opinion. I would like to suggest that while we fulfill all the ideas that have been presented to us at this banquet we should lift up our eyes and see another duty that is incumbent on us. We have in our midst many men who have served the city in various capacities—as public officials on various boards. These men deserve recognition. Let us show them some appreciation. These men are men of heart, talent and intellect. They have given faithful service. Let us pat them on the back and say 'Well done, good and faithful servant.' Too often men who have given most valuable and disinterested service to the city have been allowed to drop out of sight without a single word of commendation."

"Again I would say it is a bad plan to wash our dirty linen in public. Keep it out of sight. Do not be too ready to condemn. Encourage those who are serving you. Always say 'I believe they are doing their duty.' Allow no one to suggest the reverse. Stand by your city. Believe in it, aid it. As was once well said by a lover of this city, 'Every dollar spent in Glendale helps to build up Glendale; every dollar spent in some other city helps to build up that city.'

Stephen C. Packer said: "As it is the wish of the toastmaster that this banquet should come to an end in time to give every one a chance to take part in the street celebration tonight I will only briefly say that I am with you all in the resolve to boost Glendale. I will do my part. Push the good work along."

Albert D. Pearce, secretary of the welfare committee, said: "A banquet such as this is a great clearing house of ideas. Our exchange of ideas to-night is for the betterment of Glendale. We are all working for that end. The purpose of the welfare committee in organizing this banquet was to get us all together; to meet informally. Let us do this frequently. Come to the meetings of the chamber and help us, and Glendale will soon be known as one of the most progressive cities of Southern California."

The toastmaster then called again on Mr. Frederick Baker, who said:

"I suggest that we hold a mass meeting of citizens to discuss the proposition now before the community—the reorganization of the city of Glendale to a city of the fifth class. This is a serious question and it should be discussed at a mass meeting. It affects every interest and it should be seriously considered by every man and woman in the city. If it is best that the city should be reorganized let us get behind the movement. If not, let us condemn it and propose something else for the good of the community. I therefore move that the Chamber of Commerce call a mass meeting to discuss the question of making over Glendale into a city of the fifth class."

The motion was then formally put and carried and due notice will be given of the place and date of meeting through the public papers and otherwise.

A motion to close was then made and carried and one of the most successful public gatherings in the history of the city came to an end in great harmony. Following is a partial list of those present:

"The man who runs that store has the right idea."
"How so?"
"He advertises, 'Bagpipes and musical instruments'."

THE CITRUS INDUSTRY

"The orange crop of northern California matures from four to six weeks earlier than it does in the southern part of the state, notwithstanding the fact that it is from 200 to 500 miles farther north. This unusual condition is due to the topography of the Pacific coast. The two large San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys, in central and northern California, lie between two great mountain ranges extending north and south. The coast range mountains shut off the modifying influences of the sea, causing relatively higher night temperature during the summer months than prevail in the southern part of the state."

In Southern California, San Bernardino county is the largest producer of oranges. According to the latest available figures, which are more than a year old, there are 2,108,958 producing orange trees in San Bernardino county. Los Angeles county was second in the list at the time these statistics were compiled, with 1,893,844; Riverside county stood third, with 1,136,977; Tulare county was fourth, with 842,220 bearing trees. The other counties stand in production in the order named: Orange, San Diego, Ventura, Fresno, Kern, Santa Barbara, Imperial, San Luis Obispo, San Benito, Monterey, and Kings.

During the past 10 years the acreage has been as follows: In 1904, 84,997; 1905, 88,370; 1906, 105,430; 1907, 116,442; 1908, 148,131; 1909, 160,627; 1910, 168,182; 1911, 194,330; 1912, 189,328; 1913, 191,357; 1914, 208,498.

The decrease in acreage shown in 1912 was due to the only serious setback in the nature of a freeze that has ever occurred to the crop in California. The increase of the following year shows conclusively the rapidity with which the industry recovered. Even though another freeze might come, it is generally conceded that it will be practically impossible for it to damage the crop, because of preparedness of the growers.

"The citrus industry has reached its present development in Southern California, which is made up largely of San Bernardino, San Gabriel and San Fernando valleys, and in the coast region in Orange and Los Angeles counties. There are smaller but less favored regions in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, close to the mountains, and in San Diego county oranges have also been cultivated from an early period, and as far as Butte county in the north, and Tulare, Fresno and Kern counties in Central California.

DEATH BEAUTIFUL

"Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life." These words are ascribed to Charles Frohman by a survivor of the Lusitania horror. They are said to have been uttered after the torpedo had struck, and the great ship was just beginning to keel over. Whether Mr. Frohman went down almost as this sentiment was on his lips, and with courage undaunted in his heart, or the pretty story has been woven of imagery such as strives with the stern reality of fact in the aftermath of each big event, matters little. He might have said it. A friend attributing it to him extols the manhood and the dignity of the one who perished without fear. To hold death in dread is perhaps the result of the instinct that tends to perpetuate the race. Were the exit from earthly affairs not dark with mystery, the impulse to leap into its shadows might more
